More than ever, School Psychologists are part of a multidisciplinary team working collaboratively with other school-based professionals within the school setting. School Psychologists have expertise in the areas of mental health, counseling, consultation, and evaluations which bring a unique perspective to any team. Together, with other professionals in our schools and communities, we can provide much needed, comprehensive support to our students and their families, working with all children regardless of their differences, circumstances, or background.

Join us for the 46th Annual FASP conference at which we will explore how we are all Better Together.
