Training and Credentialing Chairperson's Introduction

This second issue of the Financial Aid Resource Handbook for School Psychology provides information about a variety of financial opportunities for individuals interested in the field of school psychology. State, national, private, and miscellaneous sources of funding are provided.

The handbook is hoped to be a beginning in helping to offer new possibilities for students interested in pursuing school psychology as a profession.

Many thanks to Dr. Patricia del Valle who served FASP as the 1998-99 Chairperson of Training and Credentialing for her work on the first edition of this handbook. Many thanks also to the following University of South Florida School Psychology Program graduate students for their precious time and effort in assisting with updating this handbook:
